

Into the Light: Life lessons for Living Taught by the Dying

Into the Light takes you into the lives of six people as they were dying, also known as birthing into spirit. Birthing into spirit was different for each person. What their experiences had in common was the tunnel of light, seeing angels, departed loved ones and entering a place called heaven. The stories will touch you to the core of your heart. Those birthing into spirit share their sadness about leaving their loved ones. David shares, No one is ever ready to leave their loved ones. David also said, If you could see where Im going you would want to go with me. Johnny shared that he was going home to be in God. If given the opportunity our loved ones will talk about what they are experiencing as they birth into spirit. Physical death and the journey into the light can be a time of grace for everyone involved. The messages and life lessons of those birthing into spirit can inspire, encourage and teach us how to live lives of grace. Reading this book will give you a new understanding about the dying process and the afterlife, while also giving you tools for living a life of grace.
