

What Are You Reaching For: An inspirational story about how to prioritize your purpose while overcoming obstacles

As someone who has faced obstacles throughout her life, Sade Burrell has been an example of what it means to defeat all odds. As a survivor of the foster care system, Burrell has managed to receive her Bachelors in Social Work from San Diego State University and a Masters in Social Work from the University of Southern California. Burrell is an exceptional leader in her community and has contributed great effort towards improving the likelihood of underprivileged youth obtaining a higher education. As an advocate for seeing others reach their greatest potential, Burrell founded an organization named Stand For Something. Stand For Somethings goal is to help individuals learn more about who they are and what assets they have that will contribute to the greater good of society. With the support of family and friends, Burrell continues to prove that with hard work and dedication anything is possible. What Are You Reaching For? - Identify your aspirations by challenging yourself to reach for goals that are attainable, sustainable and retainable. - Live and accept your purpose while overcoming obstacles. - Build meaningful connections with like-minded people. - Use your worst days to create your best days by moving forward and using the power of forgiveness.
